

The Rockies Institute (TRI) is a charitable organization based in Canada. Our mission is to co-create a resilient climate future. With a focus on adaptation, we will achieve this through education, weaving together knowledge systems, and conducting action research. Our vision is that humans have the knowledge, will, and capacity to incorporate the risks and opportunities associated with climate change in all of their decision making.

The Rockies Institute

Village of Hope

Partners for a Resilient Future

The Rockies Institute aims to raise $1.5 million over the next three years to build capacity to meet the urgent need of building resilience and adaptation strategies to the impacts of climate change such as wildfires, drought, and floods.

Extreme events that put lives, health, and economies at risk are only expected to become more severe in the years to come. Understanding the nature, magnitude, and consequences of current and future climate impacts and having access to the best available knowledge is essential in being able to build our resilience and capacity to adapt.

By becoming a member of the Village of Hope you will help build the adaptive capacity of those who are most vulnerable to the impacts of climate change and will ensure citizens have the knowledge and capacity to adapt to rapidly changing circumstances.

Village of Hope partners invest in TRI's capacity to deliver high impact initiatives. By joining the Village of Hope with a donation or sponsorship, you will contribute to a safer, more resilient future.

Adaptation Leaders

$100,000 - $500,000+

Adaptation Leaders are instrumental in boosting TRI's capacity to develop and deliver critical programming in response to urgent needs and in preparation for changing circumstances. You will directly impact our ability to scale-up program delivery and to develop partnerships locally and globally. As an Adaptation Leader, you will receive:

- Customized engagement opportunities and/or consultation for your team to learn from our expertise in building adaptive capacity and community resilience to climate change from local and global perspectives. Custom adaptation learning journeys are also possible;
- Acknowledgement on our Village of Hope Partnership Page, in social media and in our e-news bulletins; and;
- Verbal and/or visual acknowledgement at most events and on all presentations at community capacity building initiatives wherever relevant. We deliver approximately 10 workshops and events / year. Target audiences include community and industry leaders, youth, elders in Indigenous communities, social and natural scientists, and experts working in disaster and risk management.

Resilience Builders

$50,000 – 99,999

Resilience Builders will support TRI's capacity to deliver impactful programming that helps build the capacity of some of the most vulnerable to respond to extreme events and other impacts of climate change, such as drought. You will also enable knowledge to be shared through local and global platforms that will build collective resilience to climate change impacts. As a Resilience Builder, you will be visually recognized at all relevant workshops and events, on TRI's website, in social media, and customized engagement opportunities as mutually agreed upon.

Community Collaborators

$5,000 – 49,999

Community Collaborators will fund TRI's capacity to build partnerships and strengthen community engagement. Your generosity will be recognized on our website, on social media and at relevant workshops and events.
